General Comment

I beg the EPA to take a serious look at the chemicals we dumping onto our food and in our environment. The monied interests have controlled the conversation long enough and the people want to return to a more sustainable way to grow food, without the use of all these chemicals, which are bad for us and bad for our planet. The research is claim these chemicals are safe are done by the same organizations and companies that support and make this stuff, and are doing a disservice to us all and it needs to stop. This money over everything mentality is over and as citizens we are saying enough is enough. We must return to organic farming for the health of the planet and all it's inhabitants.
